The evening was spent in the playing of games, visiting and the discussing of present day topics. Delicious refreshments were served. Those present report having spent a very enjoyable evening.

Hawaiians Coming
One of the most novel attractions of the season, will be Kuluola's Hawaiians which comes to the Orpheum theater, Tuesday, Jan. 23. The Kuluola's Hawaiians are presenting their musical, singing, dancing and instrumental production "The Paradise of the Pacific," in which all the native songs, dances, and instrumental numbers are played and sung as have never before been offered to the amusement public. This company played a two weeks engagement at the Tabor Grand Theater, Denver, to record breaking business and will no doubt be the banner attraction of this season here.

The company not only sings the native songs, but sing American songs as well, which is something new for Hawaiians to do.

This clever company demonstrates, that its members are equal to anything when it comes to entertaining the public.

The Birth of a Nation

In the twelve reels of pictures that tell the story of "The Birth of a Nation," which is to be exhibited at the Orpheum, January 25 and 26, every phase of the human emotions that is possible to portray has been shown. Every gradation of happiness of sorrow, of pain and joy are shown. Life and death, human relations, hatred and friendship are there too—and in the depiction of friendship, one of the proudest scenes of the whole twelve reels is displayed.
It is short. Very short. Only a minute or so does it flash on the screen. But you do not forget it. It is a cameo which remains in the vision for weeks afterward.

Duke Cameron and Tod Stoneman are chums. They are boys together and when the call for volunteers for the Civil War comes they march away with their companies, one fighting for the South, one fighting for the North.

A battle. On the screen there flashes the red of flame, the white smoke of the cannons; from behind there comes the roaring of the battle effects that are carried by the picture. Wounded, stumbling, there comes into the vision, the form of Duke Cameron. A flash, and above him there appears the form of his chum, Tod Stoneman, his eyes blazing with the blood lust of battle, his bayoneted rifle upraised for the thrust that will send its cold steel body of the man beneath him. And then—

The man on the ground moves, Tod sees that it is his chum. He drops his rifle, he bends forward to aid his wounded friend. Then he straightens and writhes. A bullet has reached him too. He stumbles—his hands reach outward. They embrace the still form of Duke Cameron, they stretch wide, then suddenly fall limp. The chums are dead—and as they had lived, so they died—together. It is only an incident of a great stream picture which flashes before one for two hours, but it is a tribute to the detail loving nature of the man who has made America's greatest motion picture, David Ward Griffith.

"I Know My Children Are Protected From Cold"

"I'm not a bit anxious about the kiddies. They haven't missed a day at school this winter, no matter how cold it has been. They play out doors to their heart's content, and come in, warm, ruddy and healthful. I bought each of them some suits of

The BRUNSWICK PHONOGRAPH

Music lovers have waited long for the final triumph—one that would play all records and which combined all advantage and superiorities

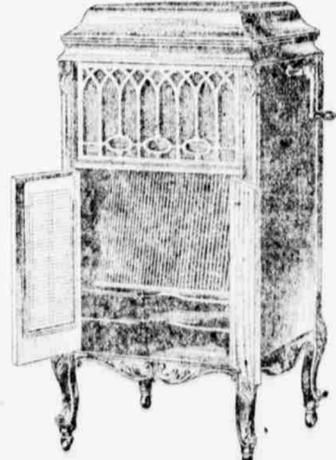

This masterpiece has now appeared and we have the honor of offering you the Brunswick phonograph—a national sensation. Nother instrument, we are certain, gives the same tonal values

OLD WORLD ARTISTS

Hear, for instance, Joseph Hollman play St. Saen's "Le Cygne" on the cello. You will listen spellbound as this great German master-cellist makes his beloved instrument respond to his magic touch. You will hear the melody in murmuring rills, in the rustling leaves, in the songs of birds. He will take you with him through meadow lands, and over rugged mountain paths. Hollman is one of the world's greatest musicians. Maybe you have never heard of him—but you can hear him play without going to Europe.

FAULTLESS RENDITION

The Brunswick duplicates, perpetuates his performances in the very spirit of his genius. You will surely wonder at this super-musician's marvelous productions—but you will wonder more that this superb instrument plays his selections as well as he does himself.

The records we mention above is but one of the many wonderful Pathe double-number discs. We now have a large selection of these world-famous records from the Pathe library—the largest collection in the world.

UNLIMITED CHOICE

The Brunswick plays all makes of disc records. Two sound boxes are furnished, without extra cost. This includes a sapphire ball, a jewel point and needles of steel, etc. Each record is therefore played on its own machine. Come into our studio and hear the Brunswick play any of your favorite records. You will be surprised and delighted. Then learn how we save you 12 per cent, and how a small payment down and a small one monthly will put a Brunswick in your home.

Prices $70.00 to $175.00
